

Name: _____

Period: _____

- Imagine you are an ancient American...it is extremely cold in North America. You and your family decide its time to move south for better weather and food. Most of your journey will be in extremely cold weather. Keeping warm and dry will be your priority. You will be traveling for at least 3 months before you get to warmer climate. Remember you do not have a car. You will have to carry all your belongings. You may be able to use a sled pulled by dogs but that is it. No electric, no modern technology.
- What do you take with you? Why are you taking these items? Put the things that are most important at the top of your list.

Supply List:

Before Agriculture

After Agriculture

People hunted and gathered food.

More reliable food source

Families migrated in search of animals and food.

Families settled down and built communities

Humans spent a lot of time looking for food.

Complex societies developed.

How did life change after the development of agriculture?

How might the establishment of agriculture have helped humans to develop new skills and interests?